In optics, optical path length (OPL) or optical distance is the product of the geometric length of the path light follows through the system, and the index of refraction of the medium through which it propagates ( $OP = GL \cdot R.I.$ ). A difference in optical path length between two paths is often called the optical path difference (OPD). Optical path length is important because it determines the phase of ...

In physics and optics, the Fraunhofer lines are a set of spectral lines named after the German physicist Joseph von Fraunhofer (1787–1826). The lines were originally observed as dark features (absorption lines) in the optical spectrum of the Sun
