REANALYSIS IN SENTENCE PROCESSING - Springer

The topic addressed in this volume lies within the study of sentence processing, which is one of the major divisions of psycholinguistics. The goal has been to understand the structure and functioning of the mental mechanisms involved in sentence comprehension.

Then later on in the sentence, the structure assignment process breaks down, because the later words do not fit with the incorrect structural analysis. This is called a 'garden path' situation. When it occurs, the parsing mechanism must somehow correct itself, and find a different analysis which is compatible with the incoming words.

Reanalysis in Sentence Processing: Evidence against

The implications of the partial reanalysis phenomenon for Fodor and Inoueâ€™s (1998) model of reanalysis and sentence processing are discussed. In addition, we discuss the possibility that lan-guage processing often creates â€œgood enoughâ€• structures rather than ideal structures. KEY WORDS: parsing; reanalysis; semantics; syntactic ambiguity.

Experiment 2 tested sentences in which there was no initial bias toward either VP or NP attachment. Readers experienced more difficulty when semantic information disambiguated the sentences to NP attachment or VP attachment than when it was consistent with either analysis.
